

FEES AND CHARGES 2016/17

Untouched coastline, bush-cloaked ranges, sparkling fish-filled rivers...

Rugged ranges, remote coastline, bush-clad valleys – defined by hundreds of kilometres of river. The Tararua region stretches from Mount Bruce to north of Norsewood, and is bounded by the foothills of the majestic Ruahine and Tararua Ranges, and the shores of the Pacific on the East Coast. The physical presence of Tararua is awesome.

In the beginning...

The Kurahaupo canoe made landfall on the Mahia Peninsula; the three principal chiefs on board were Ruatea, Whatonga and Popoto. Rongomaiwahine of the Mahia Peninsula, one of the descendants of Popoto, married Kahungunu, a descendant of the Takitimu aristocracy. Their marriage was the beginning of the Ngati Kahungunu of Hawke's Bay.

Whatonga established himself near Cape Kidnappers, and built himself a house which he called 'Heretaunga'. Whatonga's son, Tara, who was born in Hawkes Bay finally made his home in the Wellington area. His name is commemorated in many places from Napier through to Wellington. From Whatonga's second marriage was born Tautoki, who was the father of Tane-nui-a-Rangi, or Rangitane as he is more commonly known.

Tara's descendants, the Ngai-Tara, and the Rangitane people eventually peopled many parts of the Heretaunga, Central Hawke's Bay, Tararua and Wairarapa areas. The pre-European history of the District tells of a vast primeval forest with clearings occupied by Maori.

European settlement within the District started in 1854 when the first sheep were driven up the coast from Wellington to establish coastal stations, but access to this area remained almost entirely by sea until well into last century.

There are some great communities waiting to be discovered in Tararua. Each has a unique identity, story to tell and experience to share. From the hardship tales of the Scandinavian settlers who felled the Seventy Mile Bush, to the pioneers who established farming on the region's rugged east coast at Herbertville and Akitio. These communities are one of the elements that make this region unique in New Zealand.

Around 95% of Tararua's 400,000 hectares is farmed and the region has a reputation for producing high quality stock. Sheep, beef and dairy are the most significant types of farming, representing 90% of all holdings and accounting for 99% of total stock units. Forestry is a growing industry and there are now more than 13,000 hectares planted in pinus radiata.

Pastoral farming continues to be the major economic sector within Tararua.

Tararua is a unique, proud and diverse region of rugged unspoiled landscape.

When new connections for utility services are made after 1 July of each year, an amount be charged on a pro rata basis for the remaining months of the year.

First Year of Connected Services Subsequent to Setting Rates

Where a ratepayer connects to water or sewerage services after 1 July and for water, is not charged by meter, then the ratepayer is unable to be charged for the service by Rates for that rating year. Instead, a service charge equivalent to the rates for the year will apply from the first of the month following the connection with the same conditions that would apply to the owner as if were a ratepayer for that year (e.g. situations of multi-unit use or single charge for residents).

The service(s) will be charged for the remainder of that financial year based on 1/12th of the Full Annual Rates for Water or Sewerage services for the number of months connected. It will be invoiced in the months of August, November, February and May.

A finance charge of 10% will be added to overdue accounts that are unpaid one month after date of invoice.

From the start of the subsequent rating year, this fee will be cancelled and the service rates will apply.
